Mailing 'Tropic' Hit By Local Church Group

Members of the Immanuel Lutheran Laymen's League of Redondo have complained to Postmaster General J. Edward Day about the decision to permit mailing of the book, "Tropic of Cancer," it was reported here yesterday.

The group sent a telegram to the Postmaster General in Washington, D.C., objecting to use of the mails to distribute the book "in view of this book's known legal status as obscene material."

President Tom Rupert, Secretary Gladys Kamrath, and Treasurer Matt Hansen signed the wire to the federal official.

The action of the group followed a regular meeting of the League at which Dr. Donald Cortum outlined the spread of obscene literature.

Dr. Cortum represents the Citizens for Decent Literature.

Class Open For Mothers

Openings exist for 13 mothers who wish to participate in the Child Observation Class held on Thursday mornings at McMaster's Park, Artesia Boulevard and Yukon Avenue, Ray Collins, principal of the Torrance Evening High School, announced.

Other observation classes in the district are full to overflowing; therefore, mothers with pre-school children aged two and one-half to five years may enroll any Thursday at 9 a.m., during March.

The parent education class this semester deals with adult problems the modern mother in today's society meets; the demands made upon her by society, her children, her husband, and herself. At the same time, the children enjoy supervised out-of-doors play. During the remainder of the morning the children, with mothers themselves supervising, participate in word games, finger and easel painting, clay and other manipulative experiences, and enjoy a period of refreshments and rest.

More information may be obtained by calling Torrance Evening High School, during the days at FA 8-8080, Ext. 295; during the evenings at FA 8-9206.

Importance of Reporting Animal Bites Emphasized

With Los Angeles County recently designated as a "Rabies Area" by the State Health Department, County health officials advised residents here yesterday on the importance of reporting all animal bites promptly.

Dr. K. H. Sutherland, Los Angeles County Health Officer, explained that the designation of "Rabies Area" is used to describe any area where endemic rabies is found to be a threat to the public health. Last year 34 cases of animal rabies were found in the County.

Rabies is a fatal disease caused by a virus found in the saliva of an infected animal, and is usually transmitted to human beings through the bite of a rabid dog.

ALTHOUGH there is no cure for rabies once the disease develops in a person, the disease can be prevented through prompt medical attention given to the person who has been bitten, the biting animal must then be observed by a qualified person for a period of at least two weeks, Dr. Sutherland said.

According to Clifford O. Harvey, chief communicable disease investigator for the County Health Department, the 34 animal rabies cases that occurred here last year included 31 wild skunks, one monkey, one dog, and one case of bat rabies.

BECAUSE ALL warm blooded creatures are susceptible to rabies plus the fact that the disease is always fatal, any animal that bites a person should be immediately reported to the health authorities for observation.

Harvey pointed out that medical science has developed a safe and effective vaccine against the disease for animals, and with the wide-spread occurrence of the disease in the wild life of the County everyone who owns a dog should provide their pets with the protection of this immunizing agent.

County Health Department records indicate that more than 27,500 animal bites were investigated last year, and 248 persons bitten by wild or unknown animals received the Pasteur treatment in the clinics of the department.

Southwest Population Gains Told

Figures just released by the Southern California Gas Co. show a total of 189,218 customers being served in the firm's Southwest division headquartered in Inglewood.

According to division manager G. M. Babbe, this is a gain of 5,240 customers over last year's total of 183,978. The utility's Southwest division report was part of the over-all company summary for the year, which showed a gain of 30,368 new meters at the end of 1961.

With the additional of 1961's nearly 30,400 new meters, Babbe said the Southern California Gas Co. now has a total of 1,762,970 customers, strengthening the firm's position as one of the nation's largest natural gas distributing companies.

The area showing the greatest increase in customers was the gas company's San Fernando Valley operating division with 9,761 new meters.
